After Vacation Peel
Your Discolored Skin

Woman returning from the sea-side with sunburned, reddened or freckled complexion will be wise to immediately take up the discolored skin treatment. Weather beaten skin had best come off for an instant at least. Sunburned skin can easily make a break, especially when it is rubbed. There is no easy way to shed the discolored epidermis except by the treatment suggested. But the way is before retiring, so you would need soap and water, and a soft cloth.

Minuscule particles of soap skin will last all day, gradually showing the healthy, youthful skin beneath.

The soap should be enough to make an abundant lather, enough to make the discolored or spotted complexion clear, white and satiny soft. The action is so gentle the harm is caused and the face shows no trace of its use.—APB.

POLICE PERSONNEL NOT TO BE CHANGED

NEW WEEKLY LABOR PAPER STARTS SOON

Present Force of Fifty Men Not Too Large for Adequate Policing of City, Says Chief.

"No reduction of the police force is contemplated at present," said Charles Allen, chief of police last night. "The present force, which numbers 50 men, is not at all too large for adequate policing of the city, and it is our intention to retain the force as it is."

When asked if the budget of the city would be large enough to pay the increased salaries of the additional men, Chief Allen said that since an additional tax had secured the additional two men, he believed that the funds would be ample to meet the expenses of the enlarged police department.

No men have been released from department since the recent policemen's strike except Ed Horn, formerly president of the union, who was removed immediately after he went to work for a disagreement between him and the office of William M. Jacobs, traffic officer, handled in his resignation last night to accept a more remunerative position in the oil fields.

Length of Service to Determine Increases; Mayor Says Every Cent Budget Allows Will Be Given.

ANOTHER all-day meeting from members of the city fire department to settlement from M. J. Bishop, M. McNaull, L. E. Clegg, G. C. Cummings, commissioners appointed by Mayor Hubbard as a committee to attempt an amicable settlement with the firemen over the wage controversy to be presented to the commissioners as soon as possible.

Although Commissioners Bishop, Clegg and Clegg, who had been appointed to the firemen's wage increase, would be satisfied if the firemen would accept the offer, the commissioners will not insist on it.

Hubbard says that the firemen will be granted a 10 percent increase in pay amounting to $1.50 monthly with the exception of those men who will probably begin service at the minimum wage with others increasing as early as service. It is known that the commissioners are prepared to make no increase on an average of 10 cents while less served faithfully for years.

It is not clear what scope of the budget will not allow for payment of a recommended increased wages at the rate of $1.68 for each month to members of the department who were in voluntary service. It all depends on the policy of the city council for a minimum of 10 percent of the weekly pay of $10.00 will be continued the department.

Although there is no opposition from the firemen, Mayor Hubbard stated he believed they would accept the terms. We are giving them the walk and I don't see how they ever sent the contract bill allowing a 10 percent increase.

SALESMEN WANT COMMISSION:

That day James found a purchaser for the property at that figure, but that the oil companies had refused to close the sale and in addition refuse to pay the plaintiff the commission of $1,800 offered to be due them.
